

On December 21st, we received the sad news that our beloved sister Satya had been killed in an accident earlier on in the day. Her step brother had been informed by the police.

Satya's car had broken down on a national highway. Having set up warning triangles, our dear sister was overrun by a car and instantly killed. Apparently, the driver was using his phone while driving and had taken illegal drugs.

Because of the police investigation, Satya's body could not be cremated but had to be buried and yesterday morning, about 20 of us Brahmins, were present for the funerals and to support Satya's step brother and his daughter, her only family, as well as several colleagues and friends.

Satya was still called Cathy when she took her spiritual birth in Strasbourg at the age of 28, in 1984. She then very quickly moved to Paris, where the whole family was at the time.

Her life before gyan had been difficult as she had searched for her father, who was from Sri Lanka and who passed away before she could find him.

So when she found Baba, He really became her world.

Although an incognito server, Satya is one of the 'old and gold' jewels of Baba's French family. A very introspective and powerful soul, she was a person of integrity and maturity who tirelessly and honestly worked on herself.

At the end of the 1990s, she wished to have her name changed as she could feel a real inner shift and Dadi called her Satya (Truth, Sincerity). It was for her Baba giving her a new name and a new life. She was an inspiring example of deep self-transformation. Affected by a nearly total loss of hearing in her forties, Satya still started to sing in a choral and could perform in BK gatherings, singing jazz songs with really much talent.

She had the great fortune of meeting BapDada personally.

"You are a Shiv Shakti; a serviceable Shiv Shakti, always combined, a powerful soul always busy in making others powerful.

You have made Baba your world. You must go ahead and reach your karmateet stage.

Baba is always with you."

We will always keep in our memories her lovely clean heart, her benevolent, non-judgmental and empathetic listening skills as well as her eyes sparkling with joy and understanding. She enjoyed so much sharing gyan with contact souls. A true teacher, she also was a living mine of virtues and the embodiment of the spiritual friend for many.

We already miss her beautiful energy.
