EDITORIAL

LET'S MEND OUR WAYS

As we meet again, there is a lot to feel happy about the forward progression of life as there are moments of gloom and despair. Many Indian states has been struck by monsoon floods and it is time for all of us to be with the affected people in every possible way. Along with death, distress and despair, calamities bring with them a strong warning signal to mend our ways. Natural Disasters are a complete human creation-the result of centuries of abuse and misuse of the natural resources. The existing mechanisms for flood risk mitigation are inadequate to address flood risks as is evident from the death rates. Let's do our share to bring the attention of Government and the concerned authorities to act proactive along with sending peaceful meditative vibrations to the nature.

From Godlywood Studio the series on Gita is out for telecast - The ancient wisdom is getting more and more relevant in the present scenario and the interpretation of Geeta keeping the family man in front can prove to be the quick reference guide for our day to day interactions. 'Geeta in the present context' will stimulate, provoke and direct your thought process to a more productive and peaceful life. I appeal to all our content partners and channels to promote this series as an essential service to the society.

More shows are on its way, as TEAM Godlywood remain committed to touch the last of the aspirants from every nook and corner of the world. Read excerpts from the inspiring speech of General VK Singh in this issue, get in touch with the amazing Monarch Virtuoso which is the backbone of Peace News and other regular columns which I hope will instruct as well as inspire you.

Happy reading! Till we meet again, may your every day be auspicious, may your whole life be prosperous and may the boundless blessings and love of The Supreme Almighty shower on you all the time.

With Warm Regards,

SATVIKA VYANJANA - FOOD FOR THE MIND

Chandogya Upanishad says: As the food; so the mind. Food for body has been discussed, researched and penned down enough, now it's high time we focus on 'food for the mind'. Brahma Kumaris has always been a proponent of pure 'satvik' bhojan and its role in forming a meditative mind, now Godlywood Studio has stepped in to make a regional show in Kannada language - SATVIKA VYANJANA - which highlights the subtle aspects of food that we easily overlook.

Influence of human thoughts in changing the molecular structure of water is scientifically proved. Though calorie charts and nutrition facts are important, it's the 'subtle aspect' of food which is the decisive factor on our state of mind.

As the collective consciousness of the environment is of lower frequency, food is exposed to lower vibrations. That is where 'cooking food for GOD' and 'offering it to GOD' before consuming becomes of paramount importance. Making our everyday meal a 'prasada' should become a habit if we don't want the turbulence of the world to affect our state of mind. Remembrance of the Supreme while cooking is the key here, the essentials of which can be learned from any Brahma Kumaris centre.

SATVIKA VYANJANA created by the efforts of Kannad Dept. of Godlywood Studio features B.K.Mohan - a well known chef from Udupi, Karnataka where he prepares all flavours of food that includes salads, smoothies, vegetable recipes and sweet recipes in a satvik way that nourish both the mind and the body.

GUEST-CORNER

REVOLUTIONISING EDUCATION

General V.K.Singh
Minister for SRT & H,
Govt. of India

Government of India. He shared his thoughts on the present social scenario and the role of Brahma Kumaris during his visit to Godlywood Studio:

"In 1996, I visited the magnificent complex of Brahma Kumaris HQ at Mt.Abu nestled in the cool heights of Aravalli mountains. I am amazed at the growth of Brahma Kumaris organization and the plethora of spiritual activities, conferences, spiritual congregations and educational retreats given the present world scenario. This is a perfect place to relax, refresh and recharge the soul - An academy for higher learning of values and spiritual skills."

"'Spirituality in society' goes beyond the confines of religion and has moved from a concern of self-realization to one which incorporates social and public values, in areas such as health care, economics, politics, etc. Though spirituality basically is to connect with ourselves and GOD, it is also a give back to the society where through teamwork we motivate society to adopt a harmonious and more encompassing attitude.

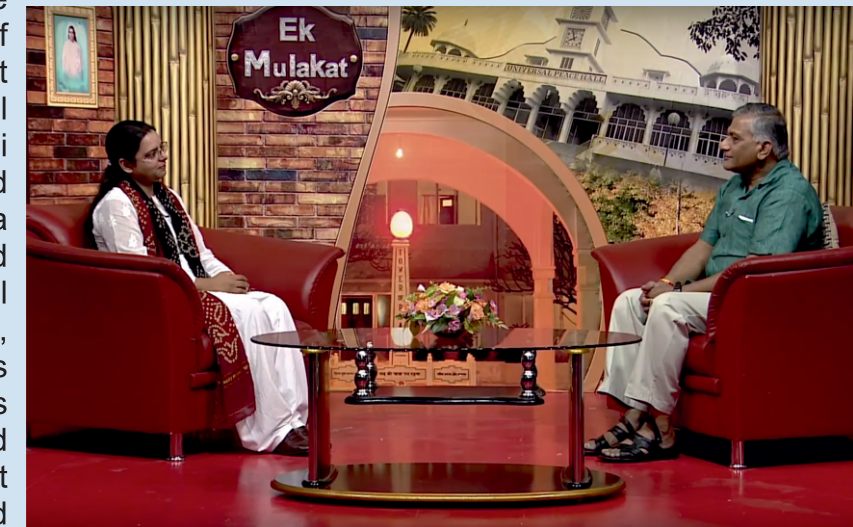

"Materialism doesn't work, of course - or at least, it only works for a very short time. The happiness of buying or owning a new item rarely lasts longer than a couple of days. The sense of ego-inflation generated by wealth or expensive possessions can be more enduring, but it's very fragile too. It depends on comparing yourself to other people who aren't as well off as you, and evaporates if you compare yourself to someone who is wealthier than you. And no matter how much we try to complete or bolster our ego, our inner discontent and incompleteness always re-emerges, generating new desires. No matter how much we get, it's never enough. Desires are inexhaustible. The satisfaction of one desire just creates new desires, like a cell multiplying. The only real way of alleviating this psychological discord is not by trying to escape it, but by trying to heal it only and only by spirituality, which is the main body of teachings of the Brahma Kumaris. One should also inculcate the quality of transparency and accountability in all transitions."

"From ancient times, education has been a powerful tool to help an individual realize his or her full potential and grow into a well-rounded, cultured human being capable of making a worthwhile contribution to society. Today's educational system, however, more often than not merely equips students with the skills and information required to earn a livelihood. It offers knowledge about that which is transitory and ephemeral as if it were everlasting. It can fall short in building character and instilling moral values because not all educators are ideal role models in terms of character and self-mastery. As a result, young people today lack self-control, emotional maturity and moral strength."

"But here, the aim is to re-establish, through education and research, a society based on spiritual, moral and human values; To remove ignorance, superstition and social evils through spiritual education, which is an extraordinary gift to the society, country and the world at large. I salute to the BK members who are leading a peaceful life and helping others to walk on the path of spirituality."

NEWS CORNER

THE 'SONG OF THE LORD' AND IT'S URGENT SIGNIFICANCE

What does Henry David Thoreau, Robert Oppenheimer, T. S Eliot, Annie Besant, Warren Hastings and Ralph Waldo Emerson have in common? They were all proponents of Geeta - the mother of all scriptures. The relevance of Geeta and the influence it had on the greatest of intellectual minds has been discussed a lot - now all we need is a practical and easy to follow set of tips and guidelines filtered and essenceful in nature excluding all the complexities and intellectual bends which invaded into the scripture as a result of centuries of insertions, additions and interpretations.

Hence the immense importance of Geeta in the present context - A TV show from Godlywood Studio that addresses precisely the needs of the common householder who has almost given up hope on a perfectly aligned family life - allegedly considered as a deep pit of mire which pulls its consumers into a hell of desires, defeats, vile passions and attachments.

There are three very important points regarding 'The Song of the Lord' which needs to be set straight - 1. Who sang the Song 2. What was His purpose in Singing it? 3. How does the listener benefit? Profound as these queries may seem, you will be baffled as well as delighted as the answers are so simple, practical and so doable that you can step immediately into a life you never imagined possible. Since its scope go way beyond this article, we invite the reader to take the basic course in any Brahma Kumaris centre.

In a scenario where love has turned into attachment and we have forgotten the art of loving everyone with deference and dignity, how can we create a divine and pure family life which will eventually lead to the beautiful idea of 'One World One Family'? Is there a process to make it a reality? This is an amazing discussion to inspire the despondent and the desperate; a beautiful dialogue to kindle oneness and self-respect; an extraordinary journey of transit from despair to prudence.

Geeta is not an 'ancient' scripture! In the cyclic progression of life the old become the new and when history repeats itself, what we think ancient can be so alarmingly current that it calls us for an urgent transformation! Bhagavad Geeta is GODs wisdom for His children. In embracing that wisdom lies the salvation of humanity. GOD wants to create a new World and wants all of us to be co-creators with Him in this mission!

Watch the show and get back to us with your feedback. It's invaluable for us as we remain committed to create more shows that touch the essentials of Life.
