

Om Shanti Everyone !

After paying attention to the theme of emerging divine sanskars to create a divine world, we were paying attention to imbibing divine sanskars. I am sure some of you have achieved a certain percentage in your spiritual growth, and even if there might not be much attainments, this attention was there. If we want to be helpers of Baba, to create a divine world, we have to emerge our divine sanskars. We saw Brahma Baba, then Dadi Prakashmani, and Mama, all of them saw divine sanskars as inheritance. Today, Baba said in murli, that when there is truth, there is divinity. So, we know that divine sanskars come from divine virtues, and as much as we keep in our awareness these divine virtues, we use them in our words, actions, and relationships. This is how virtues become sanskars. Divine virtues will change into sanskars, and then you will experience yourself ready for the divine world.

I always feel that Baba has done so much for each one of us. Even today, Baba said that He is serving as Father, Teacher and Satguru. Our life, our face, should show that we are God's child, God's student, follower of Baba, a friend and guide in all relationships. So, what is needed is to keep bringing that awareness as much as possible in our actions, then divine sanskars will emerge. If we don't pay attention to what we want, then many kinds of other sanskars emerge. I remember Didi Manmohini used to say, if you are served a certain variety of food and your attention is on the food, it is not on soul consciousness. For those who were there for a long time, Didi used to say, you shouldn't even look at the food. You should just be the image of contentment, and remember whom you belong to. Wherever you go, you go to serve, even if you are invited maybe for Brahma Bhojan, your interest shouldn't be in Brahma Bhojan, it should be that "I am here to serve." She always used to remind us that wherever I am, I have to be the embodiment of virtues. Then, when they look at us, they will have experiences.

I remember Didi teaching us to keep attention on this awareness of what I have to be, "I am God's child, I am becoming a deity." You must have seen in temples how they offer so much variety of food, but have you ever seen that goddess or god looking at the food? Never. They want devotees to have a vision, to receive what they have come for, and when they do that, of course devotees will bring more and more. So, it is the same for all of us in practical life. Our attention is not anywhere else, but wherever we go, the thought is, "I want to reveal Baba, I want them to feel the presence of Baba." When that awareness is there, then they are touched by our purity, our love for God, and of course, when we say something, it touches their hearts, also. Keeping the awareness of the aim in my life will help us to be an embodiment, emerge right sanskars, create right sanskars. We have to conclude our journey, don't we? For this, we have to be in that state of mind which is of contentment, perfection, and glorifying Baba through our face. If we create that personality, I'm sure we are able to not only serve but there will be a lot of contentment, of making one's own effort, and moving towards perfection.

Om Shanti
